Profile

John is an experienced college sports attorney focusing on counseling institutions and affiliated entities on collegiate sports matters. As a former NCAA compliance officer, he understands the complexities of NCAA compliance and is well-versed in handling NCAA infractions; name, image and likeness (NIL) issues; and Title IX compliance and defense.

John has conducted investigations and appeared before NCAA committees on behalf of his clients. John represents institutions in matters before the NCAA Committee on Infractions, Infractions Appeals Committee and NCAA Committee on Academics. Additionally, he is deeply experienced in providing advice and counsel to institutions and affiliates regarding legislative relief waivers, student-athlete reinstatement, the NCAA Academic Performance Program, Gender Equity concerns and in conducting compliance internal reviews.

Prior to joining Bond, John was a partner and vice-chair of the collegiate and professional sports law practice for Lewis Brisbois Bisgaard & Smith. John is a published author on subjects concerning NCAA compliance and frequently presents on sports law topics.
