Profile

Paul is a trusted advisor who carefully listens to his clients' needs and concerns. He recommends courses of action designed to achieve their business objectives, while minimizing risk. He has experience counseling a variety of clients, including:

- Manufacturers
- Health care providers
- Colleges and Universities
- Technology companies
- Food service and hospitality clients
- Franchised businesses
- Developers
- Contractors
- Retailers
- Authors and entertainers

These clients range from large companies and institutions, engaged in international transactions, to not-for-profits and start-ups.

In the course of his representation of start-up companies and small businesses, Paul assists clients by providing counsel regarding the proper choice of entity and the formation of the corporation, Limited Liability Company or other type of business entity.

Paul's practice consists of review and negotiation of various commercial agreements, including:

- Non-disclosure / confidentiality agreements
- Employment agreements
- Non-competition agreements
- Shareholder / buy-sell agreements
- Independent contractor agreements
- Terms and conditions of sale or purchase
- Inventory management and supply agreements
- Sponsorship agreements
- Software license agreements
- Software as a Service (SaaS) agreements
- Franchise and distribution agreements
- Design and development agreements

Paul is also experienced in transactional matters. Representing both buyers and sellers, Paul handles both asset and equity based transactions, as well as other types of business combinations. This experience has allowed him to gain a keen understanding of issues that are important to business owners and provide counsel on the proper deal structure and terms for a successful transaction. Paul regularly assists his clients with the preparation and negotiation of confidentiality agreements, letters of intent, asset / stock purchase agreements, and other ancillary agreements
